U.S. Air Strikes Still Far from Achieving Goal

Observer Expects More Bombings Against Viet Reds

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The U.S. air strikes against North Viet Nam are still far from achieving their aims after six months of virtual round-the-clock action, according to the best available assessments.

"We'll need to drop a lot more bombs, and we'll have to lose increasing numbers of aircraft to get anywhere," one highly qualified source said.

U.S. Air Force and Navy planes have dropped an estimated 10,000 tons of bombs on North Viet Nam targets. About 50 U.S. aircraft have been lost.

The continuous strikes began Feb. 7.

U. S. planes first began hammering Communist installations with two goals in mind.

One was to cut the supply

The Grand Champion of the 4-H fat cattle show was selected by Randall Reed, the judge, shortly after noon yesterday.

Receiving the top honor, which climaxes more than eight months of work by 4-H members with beef steer projects, was Mike Thomas, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Thomas, Route 3.

His champion Hereford steer was placed at the top in the final elimination which included the champion and reserve champion of each of the three major beef breeds. Thomas is a member of the Walnut Wonder Workers.

The reserve champion of the show was Joan Enoch's steer. It, too, was a Hereford animal. Miss Enoch fed and showed the grand champion steer last year.

IN THE lightweight Angus division, Wayne Brown was first, Christie Hawker placed second and Becky Young third. The heavyweight division was won by Rick Macklin with Stephen Bower second and Dan Patrick third.

Thomas' steer was the first in the lightweight Hereford class and was the champion Hereford as well as the grand champion of the show. Brent Rhoads had the second place lightweight Hereford while Richard Thornton's steer was third.

Joan Enoch's heavyweight Hereford topped its class, was the reserve champion Hereford and the reserve champion of the show. Chris Schein showed the second place Hereford steer and David Thornton the third place steer.

Steve Johnson showed the lightweight Shorthorn first place animal and was the champion of the Shorthorn division. Sharon Graves was second in the lightweight class and Patty Schein third.

In the heavyweight division of the Shorthorn show, Roger Cook was first, Kathy Barton second and Don Greenwood third.

THE DAIRY steer division of the market cattle show was won by Barbara Carter. Connie Kempton was second and Jim Garrett third.

In the beef showmanship classes, Chris Schein topped the junior division while Warren Kinsell was first in the senior division.

Behind Chris Schein were Phil Karn and Steve Johnson. In the senior division, Barbara Vance was second and Linda Vance third.

The beef breeding classes were well filled with quality animals in the 4-H show. Here are the results:

Fair Steer Sale Brings $35,768

Youngsters in Pickaway County are wealthier by $35,768 today, following the sale of the 4-H steers capably conducted last night at the Fairgrounds by Bowling Stock Yards.

Scioto Downs purchased the Grand Champion steer, a Hereford fed and shown by Mike Thomas, at $1.12 per pound. Charles Hill, president of the southern Franklin County harness oval, was on hand at the sale to make the purchase.

The steer weighed in at 975 pounds. It will return $1,092 to its owner.

The reserve champion, owned by Joan Enoch, sold to the Pickaway Grain Co. for 41 cents per pound. Richard Bowers, manager of the local grain firm, placed the top bid.

THE CHAMPION Shorthorn was purchased by the Third National Bank at a price of 40 cents per pound and the champion Angus by the Fox Farm at a price of 35 cents per pound.

Also earning top price was the reserve champion Angus, purchased by Jean Hill for Tink's Tavern at 36 cents per pound. The reserve champion Shorthorn which brought 32 cents per pound was bought by the Ashville Grain Co.

There were 124 animals on the sale list. The average price per hundredweight was $30.87 for the beef steers.

Although the top price of $1.12 per pound was 10 cents under the record $1.22 paid last year for the grand champion, this year's average price per hundredweight was nearly $1 more.

The average last year was $29.92.

Playing a key role in the high average was the Citizens Bank of Ashville, it was pointed out by Frank Bowling Sr.

THE Citizens Bank not only supported the sale by purchasing 14 head of stock, but also was a bidder on many others.

Also sold last night were the dairy steers, which brought an average price of $23.18. A pen of five steers sold for $25.50.

Movie Setting Rail Accident Hurts Dozen

CHATSWORTH, Calif. (AP) — "I could see the train wasn't going to stop," said rock 'n' roll singer Jan Berry. "When it rammed us, I jumped off and landed on my left leg."

Berry, half of the singing team of Jan and Dan, suffered a compound leg fracture Thursday when a freight train engine being filmed for a musical comedy rammed a flatcar bearing actors and film technicians.

Twelve persons were injured in the accident.

Among the injured was director Barry Shear, 42, who suffered possible internal injuries.

Berry's singing partner and co-star in the film, Dean Torrence, was unhurt.

The company for the film "Easy Come, Easy Go" was working near the Southern Pacific Railroad station in this San Fernando Valley community.

The flatcar, carrying the film crew, was being towed by one engine and was closely followed by another. The crew was trying to get the second engine to pull closer, investigators said, but a mixup in signals brought the second locomotive up too fast. It hit the flatcar at a speed of 20 miles an hour.

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — An expanding role for the U.S. Navy is planned in the Vietnamese war.

About 32,000 Navy personnel now are directly or indirectly connected with the war effort here, approximately 30,000 of them with the U.S. 7th Fleet in the South China Sea.

Three months ago, U.S. destroyers and cruisers opened fire for the first time on suspected Viet Cong targets in support of the ground war. Since then Navy guns have boomed on nearly 130 missions.

The Navy has gradually increased its number of vessels on patrol along the coast, searching for Communist infiltration of men, arms and equipment by sea.

4 Persons Killed In Taxicab Blaze

CHICAGO (AP) — Four persons burned to death early today when their taxicab burst into flames after it was struck by a speeding auto on Chicago's North Side.

A policeman who witnessed the crash said two of the victims died in the cab while the two others were thrown from the vehicle, their bodies still burning.

Fortas Denies Any Red Ties

Senate Panel Hears Nominee to Tribunal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Abe Fortas has denied testimony suggesting ties with communism in his past and declared his personal relationship with President Johnson would "absolutely not" interfere with his functioning as a Supreme Court justice.

The Senate Judiciary Committee, considering Johnson's nomination of Fortas to the high court, recessed Thursday after hearing two individuals testify against him, three senators strongly support him, and Fortas himself testified there is nothing in the past that could bias his judgment. The committee will meet again — and perhaps vote — Tuesday.

Marjorie Shearon of Chevy Chase, Md., publisher of a weekly called Challenge to Socialism, told the committee Fortas "has been significantly connected with Communists and Communist fronts....His connections were neither trivial nor casual, and I doubt if they were innocent."

Mrs. Shearon specifically said Fortas formerly had been a member of the National Committee of the International Juridical Association, which she described as "an international organization of lawyers set up by Moscow to help Communists when they got in trouble."

Fortas testified that to the best of his knowledge and belief he never attended a meeting or had any connection whatever with the association. He said someone might have asked him to join in the 1930s, and he may have said yes, but that was "the totality of my connection if any."

Fortas rejected as inconceivable a statement by another witness that he had misled a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee in 1950 by describing Bella Dodd as an ex-Communist. The witness said Mrs. Dodd actually was a party member at the time.

Smart Pills May Be Just Around Corner

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Smart pills may be just around the corner.

A group of psychologists at the University of California at Los Angeles have transplanted memory from one rat brain to another by injections, they disclosed Thursday.

And, said Dr. Allan L. Jacobson, "we can certainly imagine that benefits might result for humans in the long run."

Jacobson, assistant professor of psychology, said the transplanted substance was ribonucleic acid—called RNA—which has long been suspected of being involved in the memory process.

Current theory has it that RNA molecules may encode memory in much the same way another body substance encodes genetic information.

Jacobson and his associates trained a group of rats to go to a food cup at the sound of a certain click.

Then, they extracted RNA from the trained rats and injected it into the bodies of their untrained brothers. The new group, the doctors said, showed a significant tendency — seven times in 25 experiments — to go to the cup when a click sounded, without having previous training.

Jacobson said the injected memory faded unless it was strengthened by training.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two more years of Secret Service protection for Mrs. John F. Kennedy are under consideration by the Treasury.

53 Pct. Flunk Draft Exams

WASHINGTON (AP) — For those who have a sudden, personal interest in the new and bigger draft quotas, there is this thought: The odds are a shade better than even that, should your number be called, you will be rejected by the military's examiners.

This estimate is based on statistics compiled recently by the Army surgeon general's office on results of "examinations of youths for military service" last year.

During the year 1964, the report shows, 847,511 draftees were given pre-induction examinations, and 47 per cent were accepted.

Of the 53 per cent who didn't qualify, 22.2 per cent failed the medical examination; 16.2 per cent failed mental tests; 11.4 per cent were rejected because of "training ability limited;" 1.5 per cent were out because they were disqualified under both medical and mental standards; and 1.7 per cent for administrative reasons. This last group is described as those "found morally unfit."

The purpose of the medical tests, the report explains, is to eliminate individuals with medical defects of such degree as to "make it impossible for them to perform their military duty" and to exclude those who might require prolonged hospitalization and eventual discharge after they had been taken into service.

The surgeon general's report commented that historically the standards have been viewed in terms of combat duty and that while this philosophy still persists, "the criteria for medically determining 'combat fitness' have obviously changed with the changing techniques of warfare."

In some respects, the report said, present procurement standards are more liberal than the standards of World War II.

"This," the report added, "is specifically true in regard to persons with certain psychiatric conditions — the underlying rationale, supported by experience, being that greater proficiency would result with respect to appraising the psychiatric fitness of persons for military service if they were observed under military conditions."

"Furthermore, studies indicate that the psychiatric and psychological criteria applied at the time of examination for military service generally have not proved a reliable index for efficiently predicting future military behavior."

"In line with the new orientation, the current psychiatric screening is intended to eliminate only persons with gross psychiatric conditions."

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio is in good shape to meet President Johnson's call for increased manpower in the Armed Forces, a state Selective Service official said today.

"The war babies are coming through," explained Col. William Klare, executive officer at Ohio's Selective Service headquarters.

About 1,400 young Ohioans will be drafted in September and Klare estimates the state will provide about 5 or 6 per cent of the 33,500 who will be called from throughout the nation in October.

Klare reported that at this time a year ago about 6,000 Ohioans became of age for the draft each month. Now the state is registering 18-year-olds at the rate of 8,000 a month, a marked increase attributed to war babies.

Klare said Ohio is "a long way" from a shortage of men to draft and noted that even during World War II the situation did not become critical.

Suicide Dashes Into Path of Landing Airliner

MEXICO CITY (AP) — "It was his life or the lives of my passengers," said the Mexican airline pilot. "I did what I had to do."

After a flight from Villahermosa, Capt. Francisco de la Huerta had just landed his Mexican de Avion DC6 at the Mexico City Airport Wednesday night with 42 persons aboard. As the plane sped along the runway, a shadowy figure appeared in its path.

"My first reaction was to swerve to one side," said the pilot, "or to try to get the plane off the ground again. But then I realized that either maneuver would endanger the lives of everyone aboard. I grasped the controls tightly and continued straight ahead."

Police said they thought the man was a suicide. On the runway they found a bouquet of red and yellow paper roses.

Mississippi Poll Tax Action Due

President Follows Lincoln Precedent

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson signed his monumental Negro voting rights bill today, treading the century-old path of Abraham Lincoln, and declaring the new law is a triumph for freedom as great as any won on the battlefield.

First, in the vaulted rotunda of the Capitol, Johnson said the measure will "strike away the last major shackles of those fierce and ancient bonds" which have bound American Negroes.

He spoke before senators and congressmen, civil rights leaders, Cabinet members and the microphones and television cameras which carried his message to the nation.

Then he moved to the ornate President's Room off the Senate chamber, to etch his signature with dozens of souvenir pens, writing on the desk he used as Senate majority leader.

Johnson announced that the government will go to court Saturday to challenge the constitutionality of the poll tax required of Mississippi voters.

And, he said, additional poll tax suits will be filed in Texas, Alabama and Virginia Tuesday.

Speaking specifically of the Mississippi suit, he said: "This will begin the legal process which, I confidently believe, will very soon prohibit any state from requiring the payment of money in order to vote."

By next week, he said, federal officials will be at work in the South, registering Negroes who have been kept from the polling place.

"If any county anywhere in this nation does not want federal intervention," he said, "it need only open its polling places to all of its people."

He was applauded then, and over and over when he promised to swiftly enforce the law, and detailed the steps the government will take.

A statue of Lincoln was beside the rostrum from which Johnson spoke. Johnson's Cabinet was on hand, as was Lincoln's when he went to the Capitol 104 years ago today and signed a bill that freed slaves impressed into duty by the Confederacy.

35 Prisoners Learn To Read in 5 Months

GRADY, Ark. (AP) — Thirty-five men who could not read or write five months ago received fourth-grade diplomas Thursday night in special graduation exercises at Cummins Prison Farm.

As a graduation gift, Supt. Dan D. Stephens gave each man a 20-day reduction on their sentence. The men will enter a class designed to take them through the sixth grade.

Midway Chatter

Two of the prettiest views at the Fair are the doorway garden at the 4-H and Grange Building and the judging of the Equitation class at the far side of the race track.

Monrovia Garden Club members are responsible for the hundreds of blooming plants in the doorway garden. After the flowers were planted they were heavily mulched so that maintenance was practically nil. Mrs. Herman Porter heard two gentlemen picking out their favorite colors. One man chose pink. He liked the bright petunias.

Mrs. Charles Fleming, president of Monrovia, said she was surprised because men didn't like pink ordinarily. I had never known this, but it seems to be true. Ask a man his favorite color and he will never say pink.

The Equitation class is judged in a green meadow with a backdrop of tall trees that border Hargus Creek. Riders are in habit and the girls coats were bright red. Of course the horses were at their noblest. It would have made a subject for an English hunting print. We hope the Equitation class will always be judged in the same beautiful setting!

Nothing like a blue ribbon to perk up the spirit and quicken the pulse! We encountered Mrs. Clyde Michael just after she learned that their Grange booth had won a blue ribbon.

Be you a novice or be you an old-timer with a pillow case full of ribbons, a blue ribbon is a delight.

Mike McCoy, slightly disgruntled because all his awards were second place winners, confided to his mother after his cat

Once Around Roundtown

OFFICIALS at South-Central Rural Electric are making an all-out effort to locate a German police dog in the Commercial Point area.

The search was launched Wednesday after the German police dog bit a South-Central lineman who was working in the area. Company spokesmen say the dog must be found in order to determine if the lineman will be required to undergo a series of painful rabies shots.

The dog was described as reddish tan and about 22 inches in height. Officials said they have no intentions of filing charges against the owner. They only want to avoid the rabies treatment for the bitten man, if possible. Information on the dog may be forwarded to Bud Fischer by calling Olive 3-4422 on the Lancaster exchange.

THE Area Chamber of Commerce monthly news bulletin now has an official name. It is appropriately called "The Roundtownner." The local business fact sheet is compiled by Mrs. E. R. Bennett, Chamber executive secretary, and distributed to members and directors early each month.

SOME BUSY activity is forthcoming on E. Main St. from Mingo St. to the city corporation limit. Initial steps leading to an improvement project there were taken yesterday with the erection of barricades and establishment of a traffic detour.

Local contractor Clarence Wardell, low bidder for the $76,546 job, is now completing all the preliminaries leading to widening and paving. The improvement is a joint city-state project, with the state standing the bulk of the expense.

Completion date is Nov. 15, although some speculation here indicates the job may be completed by Pumpkin Show time.

Traffic headed toward Circleville from Route 56 will use the Mound St. detour. Drivers desiring to continue westward on Route 22 may turn right at Mingo St. and proceed on to Main St. The same detour system will be in effect for those wishing to travel southeast on Route 56.

As a graduation gift, Supt. Dan D. Stephens gave each man a 20-day reduction on their sentence. The men will enter a class designed to take them through the sixth grade.

Midway Chatter

Two of the prettiest views at the Fair are the doorway garden at the 4-H and Grange Building and the judging of the Equitation class at the far side of the race track.

Monrovia Garden Club members are responsible for the hundreds of blooming plants in the doorway garden. After the flowers were planted they were heavily mulched so that maintenance was practically nil. Mrs. Herman Porter heard two gentlemen picking out their favorite colors. One man chose pink. He liked the bright petunias.

Mrs. Charles Fleming, president of Monrovia, said she was surprised because men didn't like pink ordinarily. I had never known this, but it seems to be true. Ask a man his favorite color and he will never say pink.

The Equitation class is judged in a green meadow with a backdrop of tall trees that border Hargus Creek. Riders are in habit and the girls coats were bright red. Of course the horses were at their noblest. It would have made a subject for an English hunting print. We hope the Equitation class will always be judged in the same beautiful setting!

Nothing like a blue ribbon to perk up the spirit and quicken the pulse! We encountered Mrs. Clyde Michael just after she learned that their Grange booth had won a blue ribbon.

Be you a novice or be you an old-timer with a pillow case full of ribbons, a blue ribbon is a delight.

Numerous Contests Slated In November Election Here

Pickaway County voters will elect two trustees in each township, at least two board of education members in each school district and city and village officials at the November election.

The deadline for candidates to file petitions at the County Board of Elections was Wednesday. Several tax levies also will appear on the ballots.

Here is the list of persons who filed petitions for township trustee posts:

Utility Plans Electric Rate Slash Soon

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Customers in 25 central Ohio counties served by Columbus & Southern Ohio Electric Co. may be in for additional rate reductions, the company reported today.

It is asking Ohio's Utilities Commission for permission to cut its rates to 4,000 homes and 400 industries in the area, and said it would move next week to decrease rates to other home customers who live outside cities in its service territory.

The planned cut is the second this week. The utility asked Columbus and other central Ohio cities Monday to approve a rate cut averaging 32 cents a month for home customers. The latest rate decrease submitted to the Utilities Commission affects "all-electric homes" and high-voltage general service customers.

Company spokesmen said the home rate cut will save the average all-electric home about 5 per cent on yearly bills. New minimum bill would be $10 a month.

Columbus Units Win Music Battle

Two Columbus groups were awarded top prizes in Wednesday night's grandstand attraction at the Pickaway County Fair.

Winning a cash prize of $50 for placing first in the Battle of the Bands was The Four Souls. Second place award of $40 went to The Belmonts.

A Circleville group, The Shandells, received a $20 cash prize for third place. The Invincibles, another local group, placed fourth.

The teenage musical units were given 15 minutes each in which to perform.

Business Briefs

Two new model homes have been added in the Ridgewood Subdivision being built in north-eastern Circleville by Ernest G. Fritsche & Co., central Ohio developer, it was announced today.

One is a four bedroom bi-level complete with a family room and den. The second is a distinctive ranch-style home with a main-level family room.

New home sales in the new community are being handled by Adkins Realty Co. The models are furnished by Mason Furniture.

In conjunction with the opening of the new model homes in Ridgewood Subdivision, Fritsche also has introduced a new payment plan that offers potential homeowners a new equity arrangement under which they can purchase a new home with a relatively small down payment.

Qualified sources doubt that Viet Cong supply lines have been hurt badly.

"We have smashed their bridges, clogged their roads and sunk their barges, but none of us seriously believe that the supply effort has been hurt," a U.S. officer said. "They have proved very resourceful."

"Supplies still come through Laos down the Ho Chi Minh Trail and we can do nothing about it short of bombing acres of jungle. And the Viet Cong come in along the coast and through Cambodia almost unmolested."

There is also no sign that the goal of bringing the Communists to the conference table is any closer to achievement. The Communists have spurned U.S. offers of negotiation and overtures from other nations and U.N. Secretary-General U Thant.

The air strikes have wreaked destruction upon North Vietnamese installations.

In recent weeks U.S. Air Force planes have been hitting targets in the mountains northwest of Hanoi. Some sorties have been made to the north of the North Vietnamese capital.

Observers get the impression that U.S. strategy is to close in on Hanoi gradually. The closest air strikes to the capital have been 35 miles away.

By announced estimates 2,700 buildings have been damaged or destroyed in North Viet Nam by U.S. strikes, sometimes assisted by South Vietnamese propeller planes. About 500 bridges have been destroyed or damaged.

Highly qualified sources believe the price in U.S. aircraft and pilots will be much higher if they try to destroy airfields and missile emplacements in the Hanoi area.

Three U.S. planes were shot down in an attack on two Soviet-built surface-to-air missile sites north of Hanoi.

Five known missile sites around Hanoi are well protected. "We would take pretty heavy casualties in getting these out of the way," a source said.

Midway Chatter

won second place in the pet parade: "I'm gettin' tired of them red ribbons."

And Jeannie McCoy, his mother, who had a fistful of red ribbons herself, said that she sort of felt like Mike.

Three flower show people walked up the hill to the 4-H and Grange Building from the posy exhibit under the grandstand. Mrs. Herman Porter who was one of them said: "What we need here is a shuttle bus!" And I'll bet there are farmers who would get a buzz out of tractor-towing shuttle busses around the fair.

There may be shuttle busses next year if we know Mrs. Porter when she sets her mind to a project!

Mrs. Gene Crawford's feathery yellow flower which she used in a couple of her arrangements proved to be the blossoms of the Golden rain tree.

Flower show visitors were most interested in the green flower Mrs. Donald Watt incorporated in her all green arrangement. It was pineapple lily, or eucomis, a tender bulb.

A large afternoon crowd was in the Grandstand watching the Rough Riders 4-H Club's amateur rodeo yesterday.

The contest classes, as they are referred to by the western horse show people, require a goodly supply of nerve as well as skill.

Although the youngsters were in for more than one spill during the afternoon, Darwin Hay, the 4-H Club adviser, reports he has little worry with the exception of the steer ride.

"In the steer ride there is always the danger that one of the youngsters might get kicked," he pointed out. And one small lad was kicked painfully, although he was not injured.

One of the contest classes is a "pick up race." In this event a horse and rider race from a starting point around a barrel where another person leaps on the steed. The horse with two riders then races back past the finish line.

The event required quite a bit of endurance on the part of Marvin Clark, who served as pick up man for all the entries but one.

In that one race, he rode the horse himself while Jerry Jenkins was the pickup man. And to Marvin's credit, he never failed to give the best effort he had to each of the other riders, even though he himself was a contestant.

Jerry Jenkins, by the way, apparently was the only injury of the day. His horse fell on him in the morning before the rodeo began. He suffered a sprained ankle.

Utility Plans Electric Rate Slash Soon

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Customers in 25 central Ohio counties served by Columbus & Southern Ohio Electric Co. may be in for additional rate reductions, the company reported today.

It is asking Ohio's Utilities Commission for permission to cut its rates to 4,000 homes and 400 industries in the area, and said it would move next week to decrease rates to other home customers who live outside cities in its service territory.

The planned cut is the second this week. The utility asked Columbus and other central Ohio cities Monday to approve a rate cut averaging 32 cents a month for home customers. The latest rate decrease submitted to the Utilities Commission affects "all electric homes" and high-voltage general service customers.

Company spokesmen said the home rate will save the average all-electric home about 5 per cent on yearly bills. New minimum bill would be $10 a month.

Columbus Units Win Music Battle

Two Columbus groups were awarded top prizes in Wednesday night's grandstand attraction at the Pickaway County Fair.

Winning a cash prize of $50 for placing first in the Battle of the Bands was The Four Souls. Second place award of $40 went to The Belmonts.

A Circleville group, The Shandells, received a $20 cash prize for third place. The Invincibles, another local group, placed fourth.

The teenage musical units were given 15 minutes each in which to perform.

Business Briefs

Two new model homes have been added in the Ridgewood Subdivision being built in north-eastern Circleville by Ernest G. Fritsche & Co., central Ohio developer, it was announced today.

One is a four bedroom bi-level complete with a family room and den. The second is a distinctive ranch-style home with a main-level family room.

New home sales in the new community are being handled by Adkins Realty Co. The models are furnished by Mason Furniture.

In conjunction with the opening of the new model homes in Ridgewood Subdivision, Fritsche also has introduced a new payment plan that offers potential homeowners a new equity arrangement under which they can purchase a new home with a relatively small down payment.

lines to Viet Cong troops in South Viet Nam. This included bombing of supply lines in eastern Laos with the permission of the Laotian government.

The second goal was to force the North Vietnamese regime to the conference table.

Qualified sources doubt that Viet Cong supply lines have been hurt badly.

"We have smashed their bridges, clogged their roads and sunk their barges, but none of us seriously believe that the supply effort has been hurt," a U.S. officer said. "They have proved very resourceful."

"Supplies still come through Laos down the Ho Chi Minh Trail and we can do nothing about it short of bombing acres of jungle. And the Viet Cong come in along the coast and through Cambodia almost unmolested."

There is also no sign that the goal of bringing the Communists to the conference table is any closer to achievement. The Communists have spurned U.S. offers of negotiation and overtures from other nations and U.N. Secretary-General U Thant.

The air strikes have wreaked destruction upon North Vietnamese installations.

In recent weeks U.S. Air Force planes have been hitting targets in the mountains northwest of Hanoi. Some sorties have been made to the north of the North Vietnamese capital.

Observers get the impression that U.S. strategy is to close in on Hanoi gradually. The closest air strikes to the capital have been 35 miles away.

By announced estimates 2,700 buildings have been damaged or destroyed in North Viet Nam by U.S. strikes, sometimes assisted by South Vietnamese propeller planes. About 500 bridges have been destroyed or damaged.

Highly qualified sources believe the price in U.S. aircraft and pilots will be much higher if they try to destroy airfields and missile emplacements in the Hanoi area.

Three U.S. planes were shot down in an attack on two Soviet-built surface-to-air missile sites north of Hanoi.

Five known missile sites around Hanoi are well protected. "We would take pretty heavy casualties in getting these out of the way," a source said.

won second place in the pet parade: "I'm gettin' tired of them red ribbons."

And Jeannie McCoy, his mother, who had a fistful of red ribbons herself, said that she sort of felt like Mike.

Three flower show people walked up the hill to the 4-H and Grange Building from the posy exhibit under the grandstand. Mrs. Herman Porter was one of them said: "What we need here is a shuttle bus!"

And I'll bet there are farmers who would get a buzz out of tractor-towing shuttle busses around the fair.

There may be shuttle busses next year if we know Mrs. Porter when she sets her mind to a project!

Mrs. Gene Crawford's feathery yellow flower which she used in a couple of her arrangements proved to be the blossoms of the Golden rain tree.

Flower show visitors were most interested in the green flower Mrs. Donald Watt incorporated in her all green arrangement. It was pineapple lily, or eucomis, a tender bulb.

A large afternoon crowd was in the Grandstand watching the Rough Riders 4-H Club's amateur rodeo yesterday.

The contest classes, as they are referred to by the western horse show people, require a goodly supply of nerve as well as skill.

Although the youngsters were in for more than one spill during the afternoon, Darwin Hay, the 4-H Club adviser, reports he has little worry with the exception of the steer ride.

"In the steer ride there is always the danger that one of the youngsters might get kicked," he pointed out. And one small lad was kicked painfully, although he was not injured.

One of the contest classes is a "pick up race." In this event a horse and rider race from a starting point around a barrel where another person leaps on the steed. The horse with two riders then races back past the finish line.

The event required quite a bit of endurance on the part of Marvin Clark, who served as pick up man for all the entries but one.

In that one race, he rode the horse himself while Jerry Jenkins was the pickup man. And to Marvin's credit, he never failed to give the best effort he had to each of the other riders, even though he himself was a contestant.

Jerry Jenkins, by the way, apparently was the only injury of the day. His horse fell on him in the morning before the rodeo began. He suffered a sprained ankle.

Ghana Chief Sends Note From Hanoi to Johnson

WASHINGTON (AP) — Foreign Minister Alex Quaison-Sackey of Ghana arrived in Washington on what he described as a peace mission with a special message on Viet Nam from President Kwame Nkrumah to President Johnson.

But Quaison-Sackey was close-mouthed about his mission saying repeatedly that "I am here only as a messenger."

He said he "wouldn't say now" whether there was any sign that North Viet Nam is willing to negotiate a peaceful settlement of the war.

He said, however, that he believes that the Nkrumah message to Johnson "should advance peace."

Quaison-Sackey was to meet with Secretary of State Dean Rusk at a State Department luncheon.

Reports from Accra said that promptly after the return Thursday of a Ghanaian emissary who had met with North Vietnamese chief Ho Chi Minh in Hanoi, Nkrumah dispatched his foreign minister, Alex Quaison-Sackey, with a special message from Nkrumah to Johnson.

Quaison-Sackey, president of the U.N. General Assembly, was due in New York today. U.S. sources said they expected Johnson would receive him in Washington.

While the specifics of Nkrumah's message were not available here in advance, informed sources doubted it would lead to a breakthrough in the impasse over negotiations to end the Vietnamese war.

Johnson has offered to enter into unconditional discussions with any government. Hanoi has put forward a four-point proposal including withdrawal of U.S. forces from South Viet Nam and a settlement there in accord with the Communist political program. U.S. officials said Hanoi has been vague on whether it will insist on its four points as a precondition for talks.

The Southeast Asia conflict came under National Security Council review again late Thursday. Maxwell D. Taylor, retiring after a year as ambassador at Saigon, reported to the

OSU To Build Geodetic Standard Baseline

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio State University has announced it will build a geodetic standard baseline at its branch campus in Mansfield this fall. The device is designed to calibrate exact measurements for surveying equipment. University officials said Thursday the baseline will be the first in North American and sixth in the world.

top strategy group in closed session at the White House.

Bill D. Moyers, press secretary, said the President and the diplomatic, military and intelligence chiefs at the meeting received a briefing from Taylor similar to that which he had given Johnson the previous day.

The National Republican Congressional Committee meanwhile said "we believe the president's latest revelation of his aims... points to a coming surrender."

An editorial in the committee's newsletter said that after "agonizing reappraisal... the President seems ready to discuss, among other things, Hanoi's proposals of last April as a basis for settlement... among them are complete U.S. military withdrawal from South Viet Nam and an arrangement of South Viet Nam's internal affairs as proposed by National Liberation Front."

Mississippi Poll

"You must register. You must vote. And you must learn, so your choice advances your interest and the interest of the nation."

Johnson said in his speech that there will be swift enforcement of the bill.

By Saturday, he said, the Justice Department will have certified officially places where discrimination exists.

And, he said, he has asked the department to designate by Monday morning many counties where past experience clearly shows federal action will be necessary to assure Negroes of registration as voters.

Johnson predicted that by Tuesday registration of eligible men and women will be under way in 10 to 15 counties by trained federal examiners.

Johnson chose for the ceremony the President's Room, just off the Senate chamber, where Lincoln on Aug. 6, 1861, signed into law a bill the White House said freed slaves employed by Confederates in waging the Civil War.

The President's signature will set in motion enforcement machinery already poised to guarantee Negro voting rights in broad areas of the South.

It marks Johnson's third trip up Capitol Hill to deal with the voting rights question. The first came 4½ months ago, with Negro voting demonstrations raging in Selma and pickets picketing at the White House.

Before a joint session of Congress, Johnson declared:

"Every American must have an equal right to vote. There must be no delay, no hesitation, no compromise with our purpose."

The second came Wednesday night after the Senate gave final congressional approval to the measure. Johnson went then to personally congratulate its leaders. He said the bill brings into sight "the day when every American can enter a polling booth without fear or hindrance."

Ghana Chief Sends Note From Hanoi to Johnson

WASHINGTON (AP)—Foreign Minister Alex Quaison-Sackey of Ghana arrived in Washington on what he described as a peace mission with a special message on Viet Nam from President Kwame Nkrumah to President Johnson.

But Quaison-Sackey was close-mouthed about his mission saying repeatedly that "I am here only as a messenger."

He said he "wouldn't say now" whether there was any sign that North Viet Nam is willing to negotiate a peaceful settlement of the war.

He said, however, that he believes that the Nkrumah message to Johnson "should advance peace."

Quaison-Sackey was to meet with Secretary of State Dean Rusk at a State Department luncheon.

Reports from Accra said that promptly after the return Thursday of a Ghanaian emissary who had met with North Vietnamese chief Ho Chi Minh in Hanoi, Nkrumah dispatched his foreign minister, Alex Quaison-Sackey, with a special message from Nkrumah to Johnson.

Quaison-Sackey, president of the U.N. General Assembly, was due in New York today.

U.S. sources said they expected Johnson would receive him in Washington.

While the specifics of Nkrumah's message were not available here in advance, informed sources doubted it would lead to a breakthrough in the impasse over negotiations to end the Vietnamese war.

Johnson has offered to enter into unconditional discussions with any government. Hanoi has put forward a four-point proposal including withdrawal of U.S. forces from South Viet Nam and a settlement there in accord with the Communist political program. U.S. officials said Hanoi has been vague on whether it will insist on its four points as a precondition for talks.

The Southeast Asia conflict came under National Security Council review again late Thursday. Maxwell D. Taylor, retiring after a year as ambassador at Saigon, reported to the

OSU To Build Geodetic Standard Baseline

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ohio State University has announced it will build a geodetic standard baseline at its branch campus in Mansfield this fall.

The device is designed to calibrate exact measurements for surveying equipment. University officials said Thursday the baseline will be the first in North American and sixth in the world.

top strategy group in closed session at the White House.

Bill D. Moyers, press secretary, said the President and the diplomatic, military and intelligence chiefs at the meeting received a briefing from Taylor similar to that which he had given Johnson the previous day.

The National Republican Congressional Committee meanwhile said "we believe the president's latest revelation of his aims... points to a coming surrender."

An editorial in the committee's newsletter said that after "agonizing reappraisal... the President seems ready to discuss, among other things, Hanoi's proposals of last April as a basis for settlement... among them are complete U.S. military withdrawal from South Viet Nam and an arrangement of South Viet Nam's internal affairs as proposed by National Liberation Front."

Mississippi Poll

(Continued from Page One) "You must register. You must vote. And you must learn, so your choice advances your interest and the interest of the nation."

Johnson said in his speech that there will be swift enforcement of the bill.

By Saturday, he said, the Justice Department will have certified officially places where discrimination exists.

And, he said, he has asked the department to designate by Monday morning many counties where past experience clearly shows federal action will be necessary to assure Negroes of registration as voters.

Johnson predicted that by Tuesday registration of eligible men and women will be under way in 10 to 15 counties by trained federal examiners.

Johnson chose for the ceremony the President's Room, just off the Senate chamber, where Lincoln on Aug. 6, 1861, signed into law a bill the White House said freed slaves employed by Confederates in waging the Civil War.

The President's signature will set in motion enforcement machinery already poised to guarantee Negro voting rights in broad areas of the South.

It marks Johnson's third trip up Capitol Hill to deal with the voting rights question. The first came 4½ months ago, with Negro voting demonstrations raging in Selma and pickets parading at the White House.

Before a joint session of Congress, Johnson declared: "Every American must have an equal right to vote. There must be no delay, no hesitation, no compromise with our purpose."

The second came Wednesday night after the Senate gave final congressional approval to the measure. Johnson went then to personally congratulate its leaders. He said the bill brings into sight "the day when every American can enter a polling booth without fear or hindrance."

Moscow Ordeal: Pants-Pressing

By WILL GRIMSLEY
(For Hal Boyle)

MOSCOW (AP) — It takes an edict from the presidium to get a pair of pants cleaned and pressed in the Soviet Union.

Consider the trials of the American visitor who checked into one of the largest and most modern hotels only to find he had coffee and food stains on his trousers.

He did what came naturally. He picked up the phone and called, "Valet".

Valet?

The hotel desk was thrown into consternation. What is valet? An English interpreter couldn't help.

After a half hour of futile wrangling, the guest strode to the foyer and tried to explain in person.

"Clean and press," he said, pointing to his trousers.

After about two hours, during which the visitor was served with soap and towel and two interpreters from the Intourist Bureau, the message finally got across.

The pants were left at the service desk.

Three hours later, returning to his room, the American found the pants — untouched — on his table, wrapped in a three-day-old issue of the government paper Izvestia.

He got on the phone. More wrangling. "Take them to the second floor," he was told.

Finally, a girl took the pants, collected one ruble — $1.11 — and said the guest would have the garment back in three days.

"I must," the man said. "I am leaving for Warsaw Monday."

Saturday came. No pants, Sunday, still no pants. The girl who contracted to do the job was not at home. She may be sick, the hotel said, and may be not back for a week or so.

"But the pants?" the man asked. He got a shrug.

Another round of conferences ensued. The entire staff of the hotel, it seemed, was rushing around attempting to find the missing pants. Phones rang. People jabbered excitedly.

Intourist which handles travel, accommodations and other problems of visitors to the Iron Curtain countries, came to the rescue.

"When the pants are located," and employee said coldly "they will be sent to the U.S. ambassador in Warsaw."

The Business World

NEW YORK (AP) — Washington is eyeing the nation's stock exchanges again with the idea of getting more power to review their ways of doing business.

In return it may offer them immunity from antitrust suits.

Presumably the investing public would get what the Securities and Exchange Commission considers needed additional protection from the professional operators in the stock markets — and the exchanges would be freed of some troublesome suits.

The SEC has been asking, and getting, changes in stock exchange rules since 1963, following a study given emphasis by the 1962 stock crash. After considerable sparring in the early stages of this drive, the exchanges have acquiesced and helped draw up the new rules. The reforming process is to be resumed, SEC chairman Manuel F. Cohen indicates in a letter to Sen. A. Willis Robertson of Virginia, chairman of the Senate Banking Committee.

The exchanges haven't been too happy about proposals to have all their actions reviewed. But once again they are engaging in talks with the SEC to work out plans that both feel they can live with. The areas in which the SEC wants more power includes all exchange actions in making rules, enforcing them, and disciplining rule breakers.

The exchanges have held that they are doing a good job in policing themselves. Washington seems to feel that government review of what the insiders do would be in the public interest.

The SEC may run into opposition from the justice Department's Antitrust Division if it seeks to get blanket exemption of the exchanges from civil and government suits.

A number of private antitrust suits have been filed in federal courts around the country against the New York Stock Exchange, charging its members acted like an insiders club to the detriment of brokerage houses that didn't belong. None of the suits has yet been decided.

The Justice Department has been conducting its own study of the various trading markets of the securities industry.

The Supreme Court held in 1963 that the New York Stock Exchange doesn't have blanket immunity from antitrust suits because of SEC regulation. Now the commission apparently

The Status Quo

After every major war there is a settlement and a new status quo. The boundary lines that are established, whether officially or tacitly, must be respected, or else a new cycle of war begins.

World War II was no exception to the rule. A great semicircle was drawn through the Eurasian continent, from the Baltic Sea through the heart of Germany and on around to the waist of Korea. The Communists, probing the western nations' willingness to defend the settlement, tried successively to bite off Greece, Iran, Turkey, West Berlin, South Korea, the Philippines, Iraq, Laos, and Lebanon. In all instances they were thrown back. Tough little Harry Truman recovered from the delusions of Potsdam in time to promulgate the Truman Doctrine, which kept the Communists from subverting Turkey and Greece. General Lucius Clay saved West Berlin. The Communist Huk were suppressed in the Philippines. The UN "police action" in Korea preserved the status quo in that divided country. In mainland China there was a Red revolution from within, which the West was unable or unwilling to do anything about. But the revolution was stopped at Formosa Strait, and the forces of Mao Tse-tung have never been able to seize Chiang Kai-shek's outpost islands of Quemoy and Matsu.

Along the semi-circle that runs from the Baltic Sea round to the waist of Korea there has been one soft spot: Southeast Asia. There the Reds have succeeded in taking over a part of Laos. But this is not a major breakthrough. If the Communists should succeed in capturing South Vietnam, however, the post-World War II settlement will have been shattered. It would be the equivalent of Hitler's remilitarization of the Rhineland and subsequent seizure of Austria and the Czech Sudetenland, a signal to the world that the old balance of power no longer holds. The bigger, more fateful, showdown would then loom.

It is popular, in certain quarters today, to say that the United States cannot "police the world." Walter Lippmann pounds away at this thesis night and day. But policing the settlement achieved in a victorious war is not an attempt to become a global cop; it is merely a business of trying to hold one's own. The United States, for better or worse, did not go to the rescue of the Hungarian revolutionists in the mid-Fifties, for Hungary was on the Soviet side of the post-World War II line.

Again, for better or worse, we have made no real attempt to deny Castro's right to rule inside Cuba; our significant actions in the Caribbean and Central American area have been limited to preventing Cuba, Guatemala, and the Dominican Republic from becoming Soviet offensive outposts in the western hemisphere. True enough, Castro has, in a sense, breached the World War II settlement lines by abetting Moscow's efforts to subvert governments in Venezuela, northeast Brazil and elsewhere. But our diplomacy, having made the initial mistake of letting Castro get away with it when he proclaimed himself a Marxist-Leninist "until the day I die," has performed valiantly in the attempt to seal off Cuba as an offensive unit in the Soviet coalition.

The difference between trying to "police the world" and trying to maintain the settlement achieved by a victorious war is, no doubt, a subtle one. For when it comes to trying to police what might be termed an extended neighborhood it may very well seem that we are trying to protect everyone, everywhere. But if we had really set up shop as a global policeman we would have gone to the rescue of the Hungarians with tanks and planes. We would have moved to tear down the Berlin Wall. And we would have heeded the cry of the Tibetans for help against the Red Chinese.

In his bones Lyndon Johnson knows that South Vietnam could become the Rhineland and the Sudetenland of today. It is not a question of trying to "police the world." It is merely a matter of trying to keep a status quo from breaking down. When Rome withdrew her legions from the Scottish wall and from "Rhineland orchard and Danube fen," the barbarians thronged through the gaps. But the "Roman peace" had lasted for five hundred years. If the West lets its own walls crumble, our peace will have lasted for exactly two decades.

(For Hal Boyle)

MOSCOW (AP) — It takes an edict from the presidium to get a pair of pants cleaned and pressed in the Soviet Union.

Consider the trials of the American visitor who checked into one of the largest and most modern hotels only to find he had coffee and food stains on his trousers.

He did what came naturally. He picked up the phone and called, "Valet".

Valet?

The hotel desk was thrown into consternation. What is valet? An English interpreter couldn't help.

After a half hour of futile wrangling, the guest strode to the foyer and tried to explain in person.

"Clean and press," he said, pointing to his trousers.

After about two hours, during which the visitor was served with soap and towel and two interpreters from the Intourist Bureau, the message finally got across.

The pants were left at the service desk.

Three hours later, returning to his room, the American found the pants — untouched — on his table, wrapped in a three-day-old issue of the government paper Izvestia.

He got on the phone. More wrangling. "Take them to the second floor," he was told.

Finally, a girl took the pants, collected one ruble — $1.11 — and said the guest would have the garment back in three days.

"I must," the man said. "I am leaving for Warsaw Monday."

Saturday came. No pants, Sunday, still no pants. The girl who contracted to do the job was not at home. She may be sick, the hotel said, and may be not back for a week or so.

"But the pants?" the man asked. He got a shrug.

Another round of conferences ensued. The entire staff of the hotel, it seemed, was rushing around attempting to find the missing pants. Phones rang. People jabbered excitedly.

Intourist which handles travel, accommodations and other problems of visitors to the Iron Curtain countries, came to the rescue.

"When the pants are located," and employee said coldly "they will be sent to the U.S. ambassador in Warsaw."

NEW YORK (AP) — Washington is eyeing the nation's stock exchanges again with the idea of getting more power to review their ways of doing business.

In return it may offer them immunity from antitrust suits.

Presumably the investing public would get what the Securities and Exchange Commission considers needed additional protection from the professional operators in the stock markets — and the exchanges would be freed of some troublesome suits.

The SEC has been asking, and getting, changes in stock exchange rules since 1963, following a study given emphasis by the 1962 stock crash. After considerable sparring in the early stages of this drive, the exchanges have acquiesced and helped draw up the new rules.

The reforming process is to be resumed, SEC chairman Manuel F. Cohen indicates in a letter to Sen. A. Willis Robertson of Virginia, chairman of the Senate Banking Committee.

The exchanges haven't been too happy about proposals to have all their actions reviewed. But once again they are engaging in talks with the SEC to work out plans that both feel they can live with. The areas in which the SEC wants more power includes all exchange actions in making rules, enforcing them, and disciplining rule breakers.

would like to tighten its regulatory powers once more and get congressional immunity for the exchanges from antitrust suits.

But in his letter Cohen indicated that any action of the SEC as a reviewing authority over the exchanges would be subject to court review.

The New York Stock Exchange has said in the past that it is doing a good job of policing its own members and that SEC review of these actions isn't warranted. But in an official statement it says has been discussing, such proposals with the commission and expects to reach a satisfactory accord.

After every major war there is a settlement and a new status quo. The boundary lines that are established, whether officially or tacitly, must be respected, or else a new cycle of war begins.

World War II was no exception to the rule. A great semi-circle was drawn through the Eurasian continent, from the Baltic Sea through the heart of Germany and on around to the waist of Korea. The Communists, probing the western nations' willingness to defend the settlement, tried successively to bite off Greece, Iran, Turkey, West Berlin, South Korea, the Philippines, Iraq, Laos, and Lebanon. In all instances they were thrown back. Tough little Harry Truman recovered from the delusions of Potsdam in time to promulgate the Truman Doctrine, which kept the Communists from subverting Turkey and Greece. General Lucius Clay saved West Berlin. The Communist Huk were suppressed in the Philippines. The UN "police action" in Korea preserved the status quo in that divided country. In mainland China there was a Red revolution from within, which the West was unable or unwilling to do anything about. But the revolution was stopped at Formosa Strait, and the forces of Mao Tse-tung have never been able to seize Chiang Kai-shek's outpost islands of Quemoy and Matsu.

Along the semi-circle that runs from the Baltic Sea round to the waist of Korea there has been one soft spot: Southeast Asia. There the Reds have succeeded in taking over a part of Laos. But this is not a major break-through. If the Communists should succeed in capturing South Vietnam, however, the post-World War II settlement will have been shattered. It would be the equivalent of Hitler's remilitarization of the Rhineland and subsequent seizure of Austria and the Czech Sudetenland, a signal to the world that the old balance of power no longer holds. The bigger, more fateful, showdown would then loom.

It is popular, in certain quarters today, to say that the United States cannot "police the world." Walter Lippmann pounds away at this thesis night and day. But policing the settlement achieved in a victorious war is not an attempt to become a global cop; it is merely a business of trying to hold one's own. The United States, for better or worse, did not go to the rescue of the Hungarian revolutionists in the mid-Fifties, for Hungary was on the Soviet side of the post-World War II line.

Again, for better or worse, we have made no real attempt to deny Castro's right to rule inside Cuba; our significant actions in the Caribbean and Central American area have been limited to preventing Cuba, Guatemala, and the Dominican Republic from becoming Soviet offensive outposts in the western hemisphere. True enough, Castro has, in a sense, breached the World War II settlement by abetting Moscow's efforts to subvert governments in Venezuela, northeast Brazil and elsewhere. But our diplomacy, having made the initial mistake of letting Castro get away with it when he proclaimed himself a Marxist-Leninist "until the day I die," has performed valiantly in the attempt to seal off Cuba as an offensive unit in the Soviet coalition.

The difference between trying to "police the world" and trying to maintain the settlement achieved by a victorious war is, no doubt, a subtle one. For when it comes to trying to police what might be termed an extended neighborhood it may very well seem that we are trying to protect everyone, everywhere. But if we had really set up shop as a global policeman we would have gone to the rescue of the Hungarians with tanks and planes. We would have moved to tear down the Berlin Wall. And we would have heeded the cry of the Tibetans for help against the Red Chinese.

In his bones Lyndon Johnson knows that South Vietnam could become the Rhineland and the Sudetenland of today. It is not a question of trying to "police the world." It is merely a matter of trying to keep a status quo from breaking down. When Rome withdrew her legions from the Scottish wall and from "Rhineland orchard and Danube fen," the barbarians thronged through the gaps. But the "Roman peace" had lasted for five hundred years. If the West lets its own walls crumble, our peace will have lasted for exactly two decades.

Liz Taylor Era Brings Changes in Hollywood

Editor's Note: Following is the last in a series of five articles exploring the changes in moral values in the movie industry.

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The career of Elizabeth Taylor provides a notable example of how attitudes toward sex in films have been revolutionized.

Twenty years ago at MGM she was playing a fresh-faced ingenue whose greatest concern was whether she would get a date for the prom.

Today in "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" she portrays a forthright housewife who taunts her professor husband (Richard Burton) by bedding down with his university associates.

The most publicized star of the 1960s, Elizabeth Taylor, 33, represents the American films' newfound freedom in dealing with sex. In her most recent films — excluding "Cleopatra," which is the way she would like it — she has portrayed the mother of a love-child ("The Sandpiper"), an adulteress ("The V.I.P.'s") and a call girl ("Butterfield 8"). The latter performance drew her Hollywood's ultimate honor, the Academy Award.

Hollywood's sex revolution has been hailed by some critics as an overdue admission of reality. It has also been denounced by many as a danger to the American family and a long step down the road to decadence.

The man caught in the cross-fire is Geoffrey Shurlock, 71, Liverpool-born administrator of the industry's production code. He denies charges that movies are corrupting American morals.

"Eighty per cent of the changes in the moral aspects of films are due to changes in the country's morals," he argued. "The movies are not about to set patterns for behavior. We merely reflect what is going on in the country. And attitudes toward such matters as sex have greatly changed since the war.

"The major change in films during recent years has been the treatment of sex, and I think it is a healthy one. Film makers are no longer treating sex as something terrifying and sinful, but as a subject for fun and satire.

"The code used to say that seduction could not be a subject for comedy. But then the Doris Day-Rock Hudson comedies proved that seduction — though she never was seduced — could be funny and inoffensive.

"Then 'Tom Jones' came along to set the pattern. When I read the script, I didn't see how we could ever pass it. But the film was done with such style and taste that we couldn't reject it."

Shurlock illustrated how the code follows public acceptance in matters of costuming:

"For years we banned bikinis from the screen. But they became so prevalent on the beaches that we allowed them. Now we're trying to hold the line against short bikinis.

"When I speak before women audiences, they often ask me how far movies will go in undressing. I tell them, 'just as far as you women strip.' If the topless bathing suit becomes accepted at the beaches, we'll show them on the screen.

"As of now, we are not permitting objectionable exposure on the screen. There may be nudity, but that doesn't necessarily mean nakedness. For instance, in 'The Collector' the girl (Samantha Egger) strips to seduce her captor and try to win freedom. But the scene is done in good taste."

It started with "The Kiss." Now, "What's New Pussycat?" where will it all end?

Shurlock replies: "The screen reflects the life of the people. Whatever is morally acceptable will be seen in films. Some people say we should teach. I don't think so. Movies are supposed to be entertaining, and I hope they go on being just that."

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

Age-Old Problem

DEAR ABBY: I never thought I would be facing this problem, but I am. To get right to the point, our 15-year-old daughter is "in trouble." The boy is 16. They went steady for a year. I never suspected anything like this could happen. He is such a nice boy from a good family, and we never dreamed our daughter was in danger with him. We have already talked to the boy and his parents. His parents say they will do anything we decide on. The boy says he would rather not get married, but if he has the choice of either getting married or being sent to a reformatory or a work farm, he'll marry her. Our daughter doesn't say anything, she just cries. My husband says we should force a marriage immediately. I think we should send her to a home for unwed mothers, give up the baby for adoption, and try to live down this awful mess. No outsiders know about this and we want to keep it quiet. Can you help us?

DEAR LIVING: No one can "force" a boy or a man to marry. And it's just as well. An un-

Weekly Food Review

Broiler - fryers and turkeys continue to be good buys for weekend shoppers in many supermarkets and neighborhood stores.

Outstanding buys in many vegetables are available, their lower prices reflecting larger harvests.

Meats are mixed, with higher price tags noted in some parts of the northeast, particularly in the New York metropolitan area, and lower prices on the West Coast.

Looking ahead, the U. S. Agriculture department predicts a vegetable crop one per cent heavier than last year's. It says prices already are moving downward, except for potatoes.

In addition, nine per cent more cattle were on feed at the beginning of July than in the previous year, indicating that it is unlikely meat prices will repeat the six per cent retail price rise of last June.

Retarded Son Is Shot By Rittman Woman, 34

RITTMAN, Ohio (AP)—Victoria Rogel, 34, of Rittman has pleaded innocent to assault with a deadly weapon in the shooting Wednesday of her retarded son Ronnie, 13. She was released on $2,000 bond Thursday after a hearing before acting Municipal Judge Harold Hitchcock.

Rittman police said the woman admitted shooting her son with a .22-caliber rifle in a fit of anger when he did not obey her. The boy is in satisfactory condition in Cleveland Clinic.

12 Fifths of Gin Used Daily by Posh Display

NEW YORK (AP)—Tiffany's, a posh Fifth Avenue jewelry store, has 84 fifths of gin instead of water gurgling over some $203,000 worth of gems in a window display. There is a drought here, you know.

Trouble is, the gin evaporates. Nobody wanted all that jewelry left high and dry. So a distilling company has agreed to replace it free of charge—at a rate of some 12 fifths a day.

willing bridegroom makes a miserable husband and a worse father. I agree with you. Under the circumstances, your daughter would probably be better off in a home for unwed mothers. If you want the names of some homes in your area, I can provide them if you send me your name and address. No other information is necessary, and it will be strictly confidential. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: I am 15 years old and have a problem which bugs me. I have an English pen pal about my age. She writes these real long letters telling me about how popular she is and how many dates she has. She brags all over the place about her different romances and all the places she goes. I am getting awfully fed up with reading all these lies and, besides, she is giving me an inferiority complex. I would like to quit writing to her. Should I just write and tell her I think she is a liar and I don't believe a word she says? Sign me — BUGGED
DEAR BUGGED: It isn't necessary to be unkind or insulting. If your pen pal "bugs" you, gradually reduce the correspondence and then let it die.

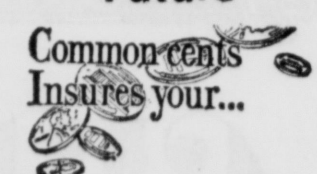

DEAR ABBY: Whatever happened to the social amenities and the gracious approach? I have just received an "invitation" to a "shower by mail" with no suggestion of a social gathering. It is just an out and out commercial promotion to send the bride a gift. Surely when giving a shower, the hostess should make a social occasion of it, honoring the bride, offering good fellowship, and a bit of refreshment — the gift being a by-product, not the whole end in itself. If one knows the bride well enough, one would send a gift without being "invited" to do so. Surely our new generation is not so totally selfish and ignorant of tradition as to put on such a shoddy show of commercialism as this.

Please bring something to forestall this sort of thing before it becomes commonplace.

DISGUSTED
DEAR DISGUSTED: People of breeding do not "commercialize" an occasion to acquire loot. And those who do are beyond educating.

'Miss Ohio' Is Very Busy Preparing for Big Test

NEW YORK (AP) — You're wrong if you imagine that a potential "Miss America" wins her state crown and then sits back patiently waiting for the great day when she goes into competition in Atlantic City.

All over the country this month, these beautiful young things will be madly rushing about. They are trying on clothes, rehearsing their acts, and slipping into their state coronation gowns and crowns for personal appearances at the drop of a hat.

At least, that's what they'll be doing if Valerie Jan Lavin of Canton, Ohio, is typical.

Valerie is "Miss Ohio," one of the 50 girls who will try for the crown at the annual "Miss America" pageant opening Sept. 8.

Valerie blew into town this week and announced a little breathlessly it's been the greatest thrill of her life. After three days in New York, she hadn't had time to think, much less to pay that visit to the World's Fair she wanted.

"Miss Ohio," a slender (five-six, size 8, 35-23-35) brunette whose paternal grandparents came from Spain, will be 20 a few days before the pageant starts. (Her initials stand for V-J Day, the day the war with Japan ended and the day she was born.)

In New York, Valerie was off to the garment district. There Miss Caryl Crane, Ohio pageant director who runs a ready-to-wear shop in Sandusky, was going to get at wholesale Valerie's wardrobe for Atlantic City.

With the help of Miss Crane's connections, and cash wardrobe awards from merchants in Canton and Sandusky, Valerie has bought a short cocktail dress required in one part of the pageant; a ball gown for the ballgown competition and another for the closing hours of the show; a wool dress for her interview with the judges; a costume to wear from hotel to convention hall and back during the fateful four days.

Valerie said she made all the final selections on her clothes — "I know if I like something I'll feel good in it."

The clothes were the main reason for the New York trip, but every evening Valerie has been spending hours in a Broadway studio, rehearsing the popular song and modern dancing which will be her contribution to the pageant's talent show.

Valerie has managed a radio taping for Ohio stations, an appearance that may be aired on a coast-to-coast show, and even an occasional chance to slip back to the hotel.

She thinks she's already gained more poise and self assurance from appearing in public and will go into the national contest well-prepared for the long walk to the stage of convention hall and possible glory. "It's a wonderful, wonderful opportunity," says Valerie. "I'm not really scared, but thrilled, excited. It's something I've dreamed about since I was a little girl."

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

Age-Old Problem

DEAR ABBY: I never thought I would be facing this problem, but I am. To get right to the point, our 15-year-old daughter is "in trouble." The boy is 16. They went steady for a year. I never suspected anything like this could happen. He is such a nice boy from a good family, and we never dreamed our daughter was in danger with him. We have already talked to the boy and his parents. His parents say they will do anything we decide on. The boy says he would rather not get married, but if he has the choice of either getting married or being sent to a reformatory or a work farm, he'll marry her. Our daughter doesn't say anything, she just cries. My husband says we should force a marriage immediately. I think we should send her to a home for unwed mothers, give up the baby for adoption, and try to live down this awful mess. No outsiders know about this and we want to keep it quiet. Can you help us?

LIVING A NIGHTMARE

DEAR LIVING: No one can "force" a boy or a man to marry. And it's just as well. An unwilling bridegroom makes a miserable husband and a worse father. I agree with you. Under the circumstances, your daughter would probably be better off in a home for unwed mothers. If you want the names of some homes in your area, I can provide them if you send me your name and address. No other information is necessary, and it will be strictly confidential. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: I am 15 years old and have a problem which bugs me. I have an English pen pal about my age. She writes these real long letters telling me about how popular she is and how many dates she has. She brags all over the place about her different romances and all the places she goes. I am getting awfully fed up with reading all these lies and, besides, she is giving me an inferiority complex. I would like to quit writing to her. Should I just write and tell her I think she is a liar and I don't believe a word she says? Sign me —

BUGGED

DEAR BUGGED: It isn't necessary to be unkind or insulting. If your pen pal "bugs" you, gradually reduce the correspondence and then let it die.

DEAR ABBY: Whatever happened to the social amenities and the gracious approach? I have just received an "invitation" to a "shower" by mail with no suggestion of a social gathering. It is just an out and out commercial promotion to send the bride a gift. Surely when giving a shower, the hostess should make a social occasion of it, honoring the bride, offering good fellowship, and a bit of refreshment — the gift being a by-product, not the whole end in itself. If one knows the bride well enough, one would send a gift without being "invited" to do so. Surely our new generation is not so totally selfish and ignorant of tradition as to put on such a shoddy show of commercialism as this.

Please bring something to forestall this sort of thing before it becomes commonplace.

DISGUSTED

DEAR DISGUSTED: People of breeding do not "commercialize" an occasion to acquire loot. And those who do are beyond educating.

Meats are mixed, with higher price tags noted in some parts of the northeast, particularly in the New York metropolitan area, and lower prices on the West Coast.

Looking ahead, the U. S. Agriculture department predicts a vegetable crop one per cent heavier than last year's. It says prices already are moving downward, except for potatoes.

In addition, nine per cent more cattle were on feed at the beginning of July than in the previous year, indicating that it is unlikely meat prices will repeat the six per cent retail price rise of last June.

12 Fifths of Gin Used

Daily by Posh Display

NEW YORK (AP)—Tiffany's, a posh Fifth Avenue jewelry store, has 84 fifths of gin instead of water gurgling over some $203,000 worth of gems in a window display. There is a drought here, you know.

Trouble is, the gin evaporates. Nobody wanted all that jewelry left high and dry. So a distilling company has agreed to replace it free of charge—at a rate of some 12 fifths a day.

'Miss Ohio' Is Very Busy Preparing for Big Test

NEW YORK (AP) — You're wrong if you imagine that a potential "Miss America" wins her state crown and then sits back patiently waiting for the great day when she goes into competition in Atlantic City.

All over the country this month, these beautiful young things will be madly rushing about. They are trying on clothes, rehearsing their acts, and slipping into their state coronation gowns and crowns for personal appearances at the drop of a hat.

At least, that's what they'll be doing if Valerie Jan Lavin of Canton, Ohio, is typical.

Valerie is "Miss Ohio," one of the 50 girls who will try for the crown at the annual "Miss America" pageant opening Sept. 8.

Valerie blew into town this week and announced a little breathlessly it's been the greatest thrill of her life. After three days in New York, she hadn't had time to think, much less to pay that visit to the World's Fair she wanted.

"Miss Ohio," a slender (five-six, size 8, 35-23-35) brunette whose paternal grandparents came from Spain, will be 20 a few days before the pageant starts. (Her initials stand for V-J Day, the day the war with Japan ended and the day she was born.)

In New York, Valerie was off to the garment district. There Miss Cary Crane, Ohio pageant director who runs a ready-to-wear shop in Sandusky, was going to get at wholesale Valerie's wardrobe for Atlantic City.

With the help of Miss Crane's connections, and cash wardrobe awards from merchants in Canton and Sandusky, Valerie has bought a short cocktail dress required in one part of the pageant; a ball gown for the ballgown competition and another for the closing hours of the show; a wool dress for her interview with the judges; a costume to wear from hotel to convention hall and back during the fateful four days.

Valerie said she made all the final selections on her clothes — "I know if I like something I'll feel good in it."

The clothes were the main reason for the New York trip, but every evening Valerie has been spending hours in a Broadway studio, rehearsing the popular song and modern dancing which will be her contribution to the pageant's talent show.

Valerie has managed a radio taping for Ohio stations, an appearance that may be aired on a coast-to-coast show, and even an occasional chance to slip back to the hotel.

She thinks she's already gained more poise and self assurance from appearing in public and will go into the national

Insurance Cartel Hit

Aviation Setup Under U.S. Fire

NEW YORK (AP)—The government has accused several insurance groups of conspiring to monopolize the $125-million-a-year aviation insurance business.

Federal court suits asked the court to dissolve the aviation insurance pools of two corporations and three associations, accusing them of conspiring since 1928.

As a result, the suits contended, airlines and other operators of aircraft have been denied the benefits of unrestricted competition in insuring aircraft, and some insurance companies have been prevented from writing such policies.

Named defendants in one suit were United States Aviation Underwriters, Inc., manager of an insurance pool for member companies, and United States Aircraft Insurance Group, an association of the same companies.

Accused in a second suit were Associated Aviation Underwriters, an association of insurance companies which manages an aviation insurance pool for member companies of the association, and Marine Office of America, joint agents for some member companies of the association, and representatives of other member companies.

The government estimated that premiums for aviation insurance in the United States last year amounted to $125 million, of which about $100 million was paid for aircraft hull and aircraft liability insurance.

Union Shop's Power Argued in Congress

WASHINGTON (AP)—If your employer negotiates a union shop labor contract, can the union legally force you to become a member to keep your job?

The answer appears to be no, although neither side in the current congressional fight over the issue has emphasized it.

The union can force you to pay dues but it can't force you to join.

This is true in the 31 states where the union shop is now legal, and would apply to all states if organized labor is successful in its drive to kill the 19 state laws that now ban the union shop.

It is true even though the Taft-Hartley Act says a union and employer can negotiate a contract requiring "membership" in the union as a condition of employment.

The current fight in Congress is over repeal of section 14B of Taft-Hartley, which now permits any state to ban the union shop. Nineteen states enacted such laws and many other states have been the scene of bitter battles over the issue.

Repeal of 14B, which already has passed the House and appears headed for passage in the Senate, would make union shop contracts legal in all states.

Opponents charge the union shops means "compulsory unionism."

But even though the federal law uses the word "membership," the National Labor Relations Board has ruled and been upheld by the courts that payment of dues and initiation fees is enough to satisfy the law.

This, in effect, is the "agency shop."

Basically, all we get by repealing 14B is an agency shop," said a spokesman for the AFL-CIO.

The agency shop basically satisfies labor's argument against workers who take wage gains won by the union but refuse to join and help pay the cost of bargaining.

Under federal law, a union must bargain for all workers in a plant whether or not they are union members.

Under the agency shop, workers who oppose joining a union pay their way but don't have to join.

Under the union shop, they not only must pay the dues but have to join the union.

But the NLRB, in a 1949 case soon after Taft-Hartley was enacted, said: "The employee having offered to pay the dues and fees has done all that can be legally asked of him."

In other words, the union can accept or refuse the dues but cannot then demand the employee be fired for refusing to join.

The U.S. Court of Appeals in Chicago upheld the ruling and in 1951 the Supreme Court refused to review it, thus leaving the decision of the lower court standing.

The case involved three employees of Union Starch & Refining Co. in Granite City, Ill. They agreed to pay dues under a union shop contract but refused to attend a union meeting of take an oath of allegiance to the union.

The company fired them at the demand of the Grain Processors Independent Union but the NLRB ordered them reinstated.

The Court of Appeals, in agreeing with the board, said it was not the intent of Congress that anyone be fired for any reason except refusing to pay dues and initiation fees.

Presumably, this could be extended to require payment of any special assessments levied on all members of the union.

The ruling by the NLRB was a close one—a 3 to 2 vote, but subsequent board rulings have agreed with the majority decision and it has never been successfully challenged in court.

With the nationwide debate centering on the repeal of 14B, it is conceivable the issue could come up again and eventually find its way to the Supreme Court.

While labor spokesmen have made the point that no one would be forced to join a union if 14B is repealed, they have not stressed it.

Obviously, they would prefer that employees under a union shop contract become active members of the union—not just dues payers.

The Right to Work Committee and Republican allies fighting repeal haven't mentioned the point at all—drumming hard on the charge of forced union membership.

But under questioning, both sides generally agree.

Asked whether any worker could be forced into a union against his will, the AFL-CIO replied "Absolutely not."

Rep. Robert P. Griffin, Republican leader of the unsuccessful House fight against repeal, concedes the point but adds:

"I think it is a technical distinction without very much practical meaning. It just makes some people feel a little better."

Reed Larson, executive vice president of the Right to Work Committee, contends "It's an inconsequential point."

He cites the case of three workers who refused to join a union for religious reasons in Indiana after that state last January repealed its law banning the union shop.

Larson said the AFL-CIO international Association of Machinists tried to force the three members of the Christadelphian sect to become union members under a union shop contract at the Arkla Air Conditioning Co. in Evansville.

The case was settled without a court fight when the three were permitted to pay the equivalent of union dues without joining the union.

Robert H. Brown, a Machinist official, said:

"The workers are completely satisfied with the way in which we responded to their beliefs and allowed them to remain on their jobs, and the way in which the union continues to secure gains and benefits for them."

One of the three men later joined the union, Brown said.

Commenting on the Evansville case, Frank C. McAlister of the Indiana State Chamber of Commerce said the Christadelphians negotiated "their own little agency shop."

Senate Panel OKs Pay Hike For U.S. GIs

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $1 billion annual pay increase for the 2.7 million persons now on duty in the nation's fighting forces won unanimous approval Thursday by the Senate Armed Services Committee.

The Senate committee made a number of changes in a House-approved bill but kept virtually the same dollar total, which is more than twice the amount the administration had asked.

Included in the broad measure, which now moves to the Senate for indicated approval, was a $10 a month increase in special combat pay, from $55 to $65, for men and officers now in the Viet Nam fighting areas.

"This is largely an enlisted man's pay increase bill now," Chairman Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., told newsmen.

Russell said his committee revised a similar military pay increase approved by the House to apply across-the-board increases in base pay for both officers and enlisted personnel.

All officers, both commissioned and warrant, with more than two years service would get a 6 per cent boost in base pay.

All enlisted personnel would get an 11 per cent increase.

On June 1, 1960, the population of the United States was 76,212,168. On June 1, 1965, it was an estimated 194,437,000 — a 155 per cent increase in 65 years.

What a disappointment! You had a tremendous drive, the perfect chip shot, and a brilliant putt; then your ball stopped a hairsbreadth from the edge of the cup. The birdie you thought was yours didn't materialize.

Of course, it's only a game; it doesn't really matter. But blighted hopes are not always so trivial. What if something really big passes you by? Suppose you don't get that promotion, your son's scholarship is given to someone else, an important client changes his mind, or the stock market wipes out your investment? Where do you turn? Where do you find strength to meet life's disillusionments?

Spiritual values are constant. Fortunes may shift and change but your Church stands firm. The truths and inspiration you find there give meaning, purpose, and stability to your life.

Polish Wall Is Symbol Of Catholic-Red Struggle

LONA, Poland (AP) — A moss-covered wall has become a symbol of the struggle between Poland's Communist regime and the Roman Catholic Church.

Officials of this town 100 miles northeast of Warsaw want the wall, enclosing church property, torn down for a street-widening and traffic improvement project.

In mid-June, priests placed a Madonna and child on a pedestal just inside the wall, right at the blind street corner the city wants to round off. Thus the corner became a holy place.

Jerzy Nowelski, vice president of the government's District Council, told newsmen: "We regret that the church put that figure there. We don't want a fight. This should be settled in humanitarian fashion. But the bishop's secretary, a backward priest, is playing on the feelings of the people. They have made it now so people will say 'Look how the Communists are oppressing the church!'"

Mayor Ignacy Kosinski said the wall will be pulled down if no agreement is reached by Nov. 1.

The officials said they have good relations with the bishop of the Lona diocese, but that decisions are made by its secretary, the Rev. Jozef Biernacki. They said Father Biernacki refuses to accept the legal price of 65,000 zlotys—$2,700—for the property.

Father Biernacki will say nothing, but priests at the Lona Curia treat the wall question as a test of strength and describe it as a small example of the state pressure they feel is on all sides.

Priests said if the Church accepts compensation for its property at the Lona wall, permission may be withheld for a new wall after the street is widened. They would agree, they said, if the city would just move the Madonna and rebuild the wall. City officials said this would not be legal.

Priests denied the charge of town officials that they are blacklisting townspeople who agree to removal of the wall.

Underlying the wall quarrel is a long struggle over religious teaching of Polish children, a source of bitterness on both sides.

Defending state regulation of the catechism classes, Nowelski said "My 8-year-old son does not attend, and the instructor made an organized campaign among the other boys to ostracize him."

Surfboard Police Powers Pondered

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Rhode Island's recreational safety director, Robert Wheeler has asked for a ruling on what state agency controls surfing. Wheeler asked the ruling in order to deal with complaints surfers have been endangering swimmers.

Wheeler said as he interprets the law when the surfer falls off his board he becomes subject to regulation by the state division of parks and recreation as a swimmer but while aboard he comes under the state division of harbors and rivers that regulates navigable craft.

Growth Through Worship

PRIVATE AND PUBLIC WORSHIP STRENGTHENS THE CHRISTIAN'S LIFE

Scripture—Mark 1:35; Acts 2:46-47; Hebrews 10:19-25.

By R. H. RAMSEY

TODAY'S lesson on worship as a means of Christian growth is important to all who would lead a Christian life, for it takes us to the very heart of Christian growth. We draw near to God in worship through Christ our Savior, and this gives us life and strength for spiritual growth.

For the individual Christian, worship involves private devotions as well as worship within the family circle and corporate worship in fellowship with other Christians in the church. Such worship is an art and, like any art, requires time, practice and thought to develop fully.

Our lesson begins with a verse from Mark relating one of the many instances in which our Lord found it necessary to be alone in prayer. In the preceding paragraph Jesus was engaged in healing many who were sick, and in casting out demons.

This same mighty ministry was resumed in the following paragraph. But in the midst of it Jesus rose early and retired to solitary meditation, prayer and communion with our Father, a habit which He followed through all the great events and crises in His ministry. As usual, the disciples were asleep at such times, but when they awoke and found Him gone, they knew where to find Him and why He had gone. Thus they came to realize the importance of prayer and were able to ask the Lord to teach them how to pray (Luke 11:1).

From the solitary meditation and prayer of Christ we pass to the worship patterns of the early Christians. For them religion was not something that could be confined to one day a week. They took God with them in their daily work and met in the temple each day to sanctify and bless the daily labor.

Additionally, they met in their homes for communal meals, for they had "all things in common" and broke bread together. Along with the breaking of bread they were "praising God," lifting their voices in praise and prayer with great joy and singleness of heart.

Oak Ridge Crew Still Pioneering 20 Years after Hiroshima Bomb

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (AP) — At 3 p. m. Aug. 6, 1945, the news reached Oak Ridge: The United States had dropped an atomic bomb on Hiroshima.

The secret of the hills of east Tennessee was out. Slightly more than three years of scientific and technical achievement, from experiment to production, came alive. A new term, "the Atomic Age," was born.

Looking back 20 years later, Frank Bruce recalls that he wasn't too surprised — he was one of the few Oak Ridgeers in the know. But most of the 75,000 persons here, including Bruce's wife, Priscilla, were just as surprised as the rest of the world.

Ryosaku Tanida, a medical student in Tokyo at the time, didn't believe it. "We still thought it was just a more powerful TNT bomb."

J.L. Liverman was a GI in the Philippines, "expecting to ship out to Japan any minute." After the bomb, he returned to the States.

Of those three, only Bruce was in on the start of the atomic age. But all are Oak Ridgeers now, very much involved in the new atomic age which deals at least as much with saving lives as with destroying them.

Bruce is assistant to the deputy director of the Oak Ridge National Laboratory; Dr. Tanida is a permanent staff member of the medical division of Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies; and Dr. Liverman is assistant director of the laboratory's biology division. In the new Oak Ridge — a far cry from the fenced, closely guarded, camp of World War II they and thousands like them are using nuclear energy technology to save lives and revolutionize living.

They are producing electric power, making fresh water from the sea, seeking cures for cancer and the common cold, increasing food production, studying the universe from viruses to Venus, and — you name it — they're doing it, planning it or thinking about it.

"In just the last two years," says Dr. Alvin M. Weinberg, director of the Oak Ridge National Laboratory, "everything is starting to look good. If you had asked us, say, three years ago if the next 20 years of the atomic age would be as exciting as the first 20, I think a lot of us would have had our doubts. But now, I think we can say it will be."

Dr. Liverman is just as enthusiastic. Using centrifuges developed to produce isotopes for medicine and industry, human cells have been broken down and a common cold virus, among other things, isolated in quantities sufficient to study. Eventually, it is hoped to produce effective vaccine.

In Dr. Tainida's baliwick, medical researchers are developing new and better techniques for treating such things as tumors, malignant and otherwise. Everything in Oak Ridge seems to look forward to a happy future, not back to that bomb 20 years ago.

A short time before the bomb was dropped, Bruce recalls, "there were two factions among the scientific personnel here. One was circulating petitions against using the bomb; the other — and I was in this second group — was quite content to leave this up to the military."

The graphite reactor, which started it all, has long since been shut down as obsolete. Oak Ridge's huts and massed trailer homes have given way to houses which look like those in any other city. Its mud has been paved, its streets widened, its boardwalks made concrete. But somehow, 20 years later, the excitement of pioneering, of doing something vital, remains.

West German camera manufacturers produced a total of 42 million cameras between 1948 and 1964.

Growth Through Worship

PRIVATE AND PUBLIC WORSHIP STRENGTHENS THE CHRISTIAN'S LIFE

Scripture—Mark 1:35; Acts 2:46-47; Hebrews 10:19-25.

By R. H. RAMSEY

TODAY'S lesson on worship as a means of Christian growth is important to all who would lead a Christian life, for it takes us to the very heart of Christian growth. We draw near to God in worship through Christ our Savior, and this gives us life and strength for spiritual growth.

For the individual Christian, worship involves private devotions as well as worship within the family circle and corporate worship in fellowship with other Christians in the church. Such worship is an art and, like any art, requires time, practice and thought to develop fully.

Our lesson begins with a verse from Mark relating one of the many instances in which our Lord found it necessary to be alone in prayer. In the preceding paragraph Jesus was engaged in healing many who were sick, and in casting out demons.

This same mighty ministry was resumed in the following paragraph. But in the midst of it Jesus rose early and retired to solitary meditation, prayer and communion with our Father, a habit which He followed through all the great events and crises in His ministry. As usual, the disciples were asleep at such times, but when they awoke and found Him gone, they knew where to find Him and why He had gone. Thus they came to realize the importance of prayer and were able to ask the Lord to teach them how to pray (Luke 11:1).

From the solitary meditation and prayer of Christ we pass to the worship patterns of the early Christians. For them religion was not something that could be confined to one day a week. They took God with them in their daily work and met in the temple each day to sanctify and bless the daily labor.

Additionally, they met in their homes for communal meals, for they had "all things in common" and broke bread together. Along with the breaking of bread they were "praising God," lifting their voices in praise and prayer with great joy and singleness of heart.

the Presence. No man comes to the Father except by Him, for He is the "way" that comes down from God into the life of man and leads back up to God.

Fallen man needs a high priest to lead him back to God; under the new covenant we have one—and only one—great high priest over the whole house of God: Jesus Christ. We who were once aliens are now in the fellowship of the redeemed, members of the new priesthood of believers and members of the church of the living God. As such, we draw near the Presence, with a true heart, fully assured by the blood of Christ the Savior.

To grow as Christians we must hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering; consider one another in the Christian fellowship and provoke one another to love and good works. Additionally, we must study carefully and work toward arrival at that stage of true worship in which Christians grow in grace and in knowledge of our Lord and Savior.

Oak Ridge Crew Still Pioneering 20 Years after Hiroshima Bomb

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (AP) — At 3 p. m. Aug. 6, 1945, the news reached Oak Ridge: The United States had dropped an atomic bomb on Hiroshima.

The secret of the hills of east Tennessee was out.

Slightly more than three years of scientific and technical achievement, from experiment to production, came alive. A new term, "the Atomic Age," was born.

Looking back 20 years later Frank Bruce recalls that he wasn't too surprised — he was one of the few Oak Ridgeers in the know. But most of the 75,000 persons here, including Bruce's wife, Priscilla, were just as surprised as the rest of the world.

Ryosaku Tanida, a medical student in Tokyo at the time, didn't believe it. "We still thought it was just a more powerful TNT bomb."

J.L. Liverman was a GI in the Philippines, "expecting to ship out to Japan any minute." After the bomb, he returned to the States.

Of those three, only Bruce was in on the start of the atomic age. But all are Oak Ridgeers now, very much involved in the new atomic age which deals at least as much with saving lives as with destroying them.

Bruce is assistant to the deputy director of the Oak Ridge National Laboratory; Dr. Tanida is a permanent staff member of the medical division of Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies; and Dr. Liverman is assistant director of the laboratory's biology division. In the new Oak Ridge — a far cry from the fenced, closely guarded, camp of World War II they and thousands like them are using nuclear energy technology to save lives and revolutionize living.

They are producing electric power, making fresh water from the sea, seeking cures for cancer and the common cold, increasing food production, studying the universe from viruses to Venus, and — you name it — they're doing it, planning it or thinking about it.

"In just the last two years," says Dr. Alvin M. Weinberg, director of the Oak Ridge National Laboratory, "everything is starting to look good. If you'd had asked us, say, three years ago if the next 20 years of the atomic age would be as exciting as the first 20, I think a lot of us would have had our doubts. But now, I think we can say it will be."

Dr. Liverman is just as enthusiastic. Using centrifuges developed to produce isotopes for medicine and industry, human cells have been broken down and a common cold virus, among other things, isolated in quantities sufficient to study. Eventually, it is hoped to produce effective vaccine.

In Dr. Tanida's baliwick, medical researchers are developing new and better techniques for treating such things as tumors, malignant and otherwise. Everything in Oak Ridge seems to look forward to a happy future, not back to that bomb 20 years ago.

A short time before the bomb was dropped, Bruce recalls, "there were two factions among the scientific personnel here. One was circulating petitions against using the bomb; the other — and I was in this second group — was quite content to leave this up to the military."

The graphite reactor, which started it all, has long since been shut down as obsolete. Oak Ridge's huts and massed trailer homes have given way to houses which look like those in any other city. Its mud has been paved, its streets widened, its boardwalks made concrete. But somehow, 20 years later, the excitement of pioneering, of doing something vital, remains.

West German camera manufacturers produced a total of 42 million cameras between 1948 and 1964.

Foe Predicts Koufax Will Win 30 This Year

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Sandy Koufax of the Los Angeles Dodgers is likely to laugh his way to a 30-game season this year, says Gene Oliver of the Milwaukee Braves.

"It has got to be fun for him to pitch," said an appreciative Oliver Thursday night after Koufax had beaten the Braves 6-3 for his 19th victory against four defeats.

"He's got such great stuff, he can laugh the whole game," continued Oliver, who collected three of the seven hits the star southpaw allowed.

Oliver said Koufax has an excellent chance of becoming the first National League pitcher to win 30 games since Dizzy Dean accomplished the feat in 1934.

"Having 19 wins this early in August is like hitting .450 in August. I'd say with an average like that you'd have a heck of a chance to hit .400," Oliver said.

Koufax, the picture of intensity as he stares in at a batter, denied he was a laughing boy on the mound.

"Sure it's fun out there, but it's also work," Koufax said, explaining that Oliver was probably misled when he looked over at him after making pitching mistakes which Oliver converted into base hits.

As for winning 30 games, Koufax wasn't betting on it.

"Last year I won 19 games and didn't get another start," Sandy said.

In 1964, Koufax won his 19th game on Aug. 16, but was on the shelf for the balance of the season with elbow trouble.

This season a touch of arthritis in the same elbow left Sandy's status in some doubt, but if the Koufax elbow is causing pain, it isn't apparent when he bends his curve ball in.

"I wish I had some more elbows like that," said Dodgers' Manager Walt Alton after the game, the 14th this season and the 75th of his career in which Koufax has struck out 10 or more batters.

Graham Set With Gimmicks

All-Stars To Test Browns Tonight

CHICAGO (AP) — Billing for the 32nd All-Star football game at Soldier Field tonight could read: Graham's Gimmicks vs. the Cleveland Browns.

With a group of fine quarterbacks and pass receivers, Head Coach Otto Graham is expected to use some dippy-doodle formations to hit a scoring bomb against the National Football League champions.

The Browns rank a 14 to 17-point favorite for the midsummer classic that will draw nearly 70,000 fans and will be televised and broadcast by ABC starting at 9 p.m., EST.

Graham, the one-time Brown quarterbacking great who has been head master of the graduated collegians since 1958, has massed firepower behind starter Roger Staubach of Navy, John Huarte of Notre Dame and California's Craig Morton.

Another quarterback, Bob Timberlake of Michigan, is nursing a sore elbow and is questionable. So is breakaway runner Gale Sayers of Kansas, hobbled with an injured knee.

Perhaps, as many as two quarterbacks will be in the backfield at the same time in wide-spread formations that have been tagged as Graham Crackers.

Twice Graham's teams have won in the series, defeating the Detroit Lions 35-19 in 1958 and the Green Bay Packers 20-17 in 1963. The NFL champions hold a big 20-9-2 edge in the rivalry.

Long-shot gimmicks by the All-Stars are expected by Coach Blanton Collier of the Browns.

"We expect them to use two or three different spread formations," he said. "They may be difficult to check because the All-Stars have quarterbacks who can run and scramble as well as pass."

The weather forecast for tonight is warm and humid with thundershowers likely.

2nd Round Starts In Little Loop Minor Tournament

The second round of the Little League minor tournaments got under way last night in a big way.

Stoutsville topped IOOF, 6-2. Circleville Oil downed Third National, 9-4, on a third frame surge, and First National hammered Rotary, 10-1.

Roy Good hurled his Stoutsville team to the win as he walked four, struck out 10 and limited the Odd Fellows to three hits.

James Whaley started for IOOF and was helped by James Ramey. Together they walked four, fanned five, and scattered six hits.

John Peters backed up Good as he cracked a three sacker and a single.

THIRD National was ahead, 4-0, through its half of the third frame. But Art Foll, the losing hurler, got into trouble and Circleville Oil took advantage of the situation.

They exploded for eight runs in the bottom of the third. The Bankers went scoreless during the top of the fourth but Circleville Oil added another run from reliever, Alan Hawks.

Gary Wertman went the distance for the winners, picking up the win.

William Cline led the nine hit attack of the winners as he hammered a four bagger. Wertman followed with a triple and Richard Sark tagged a two sacker.

Rotary tallied their lone run in the last frame. While First National collected eight hits, the Rotarians blasted 11 bingles.

Jerry Boltenhouse picked up the win for First National. Randy Young took the loss for Rotary.

Dave Truex tagged a triple for the winners. Boltenhouse and Tom Shea followed with two baggers. Kent Wolfe tagged the long ball for Rotary, a double.

Alkire defeated Mike Micka, Bethesda, Md., 5 and 4, in the opening round and dropped Kent Engelmeier, Rockville, Md., 3 and 2, in the second round.

Ohio Youth Remains In Jaycee Tourney

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Phil Alkire of Washington Court House, Ohio, remained in the United States Junior Amateur Golf Tournament after Thursday's first two rounds of play.

Alkire defeated Mike Micka, Bethesda, Md., 5 and 4, in the opening round and dropped Kent Engelmeier, Rockville, Md., 3 and 2, in the second round.

FISHERMEN'S PARADISE — Robert S. Elsea (left) and Bud Christopher admire part of their catch at Great Bear Lake located above the Arctic Circle in northwestern Canada. The lake trout on the pole total approximately 165 pounds and represent just three hours of fishing. In one week, the two Circleville men landed and released nearly 1,100 pounds of fish, as they experienced some of the most fantastic fishing available on the North American continent. They were allowed to return to the states with 30 pounds of fillets and one trophy fish.

COLUMBUS ADVANCES In Baseball Congress

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Shade-Link of Columbus defeated Gomer, 6-5 here Thursday night for the Ohio National Baseball Congress Championship and the right to meet the Pennsylvania titlist this weekend.

Shade-Link goes to Warren, Pa., for a best-of-three-game series Saturday and Sunday. The winner will represent the two states in the national tournament at Wichita, Kan., starting Aug. 13.

Grove City Undefeated In Tourney

ATHENS, Ohio (AP)—Unbeaten Grove City waited on the sidelines as Lima and Piqua met today for a berth in the finals of the Ohio American Legion Baseball Tournament.

Piqua trounced Pemberville, 16 - 0, Thursday, while Lima brushed aside Ashtabula, 9 - 2, knocking the losers out of the double elimination competition.

Today's winner, with one earlier loss, must take two from Grove City Saturday for the championship.

Piqua pitcher Tom Downs gave up only one hit, a harmless double in the fifth inning, while his teammates collected 20 hits off Pemberville hurlers.

Ashtabula grabbed the early lead with two runs in the first inning, but Lima came back in the second with three runs to take a lead it never relinquished.

Pemberville won its morning game, eliminating Hillsboro 7-0, while Lima knocked Clevelands out of competition with a 5-4 victory.

Sam Snead's showing in the recent U. S. Open was his best in the test since 1961 when he shot 290 and tied for 17th place. This year he shot 297 and tied for 24th.

200 Fans Watch Mosquito Finals

More than 200 eager baseball fans were on hand yesterday to witness Ankrom Lumber burst into a strong finish and overcome Hill Implement, 22-10, in the finals of the Mosquito League tournament. This marks the end of Mosquito League action for the year.

The Ankrom nine came up to the finals by dumping Circleville Lumber and Cook Insurance. Hill Implement earned its place with wins over Prairie Lanes and the Knights of Columbus.

The champs, who finished the season in third place with five wins and four losses, were famous for their strong finishes and last night was no exception.

The winners tallied six in the fourth, six in the fifth on a grand slammer by Jim York, and wound up with seven runs in the finale.

Twelve hits provided the 22 runs for Ankroms. Along with York's bases-loaded homer, Jeff Hawks hit a three bagger with the bases full. He added a two bagger to his triple and netted five runs batted in. John Ankrom hammered a double and a single for the champs.

Both teams were hampered with pitching problems. John Ankrom had to go the distance for Ankroms because his reliever, Jeff Hawks, had already hurled six frames that week.

Perri Hoskins, the fiery Hill hurler, was also under the same predicament. Bill Sibbick and Paul Johnson shared the mound duties for the Implementmen.

The play-off game between L. M. Butch and Kiwanis was called last night after five innings because of rain. The score was deadlocked at 2-2.

More than 200 eager baseball fans were on hand yesterday to witness Ankrom Lumber burst into a strong finish and overcome Hill Implement, 22-10, in the finals of the Mosquito League tournament. This marks the end of Mosquito League action for the year.

The Ankrom nine came up to the finals by dumping Circleville Lumber and Cook Insurance. Hill Implement earned its place with wins over Prairie Lanes and the Knights of Columbus.

The champs, who finished the season in third place with five wins and four losses, were famous for their strong finishes and last night was no exception.

The Lumbermen were behind, 5-3, through three frames when they caught fire.

The winners tallied six in the fourth, six in the fifth on a grand slammer by Jim York, and wound up with seven runs in the finale.

Twelve hits provided the 22 runs for Ankroms. Along with York's bases-loaded homer, Jeff Hawks hit a three bagger with the bases full. He added a two bagger to his triple and netted five runs batted in. John Ankrom hammered a double and a single for the champs. Both teams were hampered with pitching problems. John Ankrom had to go the distance for Ankroms because his reliever, Jeff Hawks, had already hurled six frames that week.

Perri Hoskins, the fiery Hill hurler, was also under the same predicament. Bill Sibbick and Paul Johnson shared the mound duties for the Implementmen.

Rain Halts BR Tilt

The play-off game between L. M. Butch and Kiwanis was called last night after five innings because of rain. The score was deadlocked at 2-2.

FISHERMEN'S PARADISE — Robert S. Elsea (left) and Bud Christopher admire part of their catch at Great Bear Lake located above the Arctic Circle in northwestern Canada. The lake trout on the pole total approximately 165 pounds and represent just three hours of fishing. In one week, the two Circleville men landed and released nearly 1,100 pounds of fish, as they experienced some of the most fantastic fishing available on the North American continent. They were allowed to return to the states with 30 pounds of fillets and one trophy fish.

shows Thursday night.

Mays clouted two homers and drove in four runs as San Francisco annihilated Cincinnati 18-7 while Koufax picked up his 19th victory in the Los Angeles Dodgers' 6-3 triumph over Milwaukee.

Mays came to bat for the first time minutes after teammate Jim Davenport won $50 in a pre-game milking competition. Two men were on base, and the Giant slugger promptly connected for his 26th home run. He batted again in the second inning and this time unloaded his 27th.

In his act, Koufax scattered seven hits, struck out 12 and walked two. The victory set the stage for the 29-year-old southpaw to become the season's first 20-game winner early next week.

Koufax is ahead of the pace he set in his two previous best seasons. In 1963, en route to 25 victories, he won his 19th game Aug. 17 and his 20th 12 days later. Last year he picked up No. 19 on Aug. 16 but never had a chance for the 20th. An elbow injury took care of that.

He also is maintaining a pace that would make him the one-season strikeout king in modern history. His major league-leading total of 253 is only 95 away from Bob Feller's record of 348. His average of 10 strikeouts a game could give him the record in 10 more starts.

Besides his strikeout total, Koufax — a four-game loser — is maintaining a brilliant walking mark. In 222 innings, he has walked only 44, or slightly less than two a game.

In other National League games, Philadelphia edged Chicago 4-3, Pittsburgh bombed New York 11-3 and St. Louis stopped Houston 3-1.

In the American, Minnesota defeated Washington 8-5, Cleveland beat Detroit 5-2, New York blanked Chicago 3-0 and Kansas City trimmed Boston 5-1.

Two of the Braves' hits off Koufax were Joe Torre's second-inning homer and Mack Jones' two-run blast in the ninth. Jim Lefebvre drove in three Dodger runs, two on a third-inning homer, but base-stealing ace Maury Wills was picked off for the third time in three games.

Mays was joined in the Giants' 19-hit attack by Len Gabrielson, who rapped four hits and drove in four runs, and Jesus Alou, who had four hits and batted in three runs. Gordy Coleman homered twice for the Reds while Deron Johnson and Pete Rose each connected once.

Philadelphia nipped the Cubs on Rich Allen's two-run triple in the fifth inning. Allen also singled and scored on Adolfo Phillips' single in the fourth. Relief pitchers Gary Wagner and Bo Belinsky snuffed out Chicago threats in the eighth and ninth innings.

League-leading Roberto Clemente raised his average to .345 with a single, double and home run while pitcher Don Cardwell added a three-run homer to Pittsburgh's attack. Cardwell brought his record to 10-5 as the Pirates won their fifth straight game.

Bob Gibson picked up his 14th triumph against eight defeats with a four-hitter against the Astros. Tim McCarver drove in the first two St. Louis runs with a sacrifice fly and an infield out.

Stark Countians In Publix Finals

CANTON, Ohio (AP)—A pair of Stark County amateur golfers who have been close friends for almost 20 years fought it out today for the Ohio Public Links Championship.

Don Nist, 30-year-old sales engineer from Canal Fulton, held a shaky three-stroke lead over Canton's Pete Notturbo, a 42-year-old furnace loader.

Notturbo, who said "I just had a lucky round" after he posted a three-under-par 69 Thursday, was bidding for his first state publiclink crown.

Nist, who started Thursday's third round with a comfortable six-stroke advantage, carded a 72 over Tam O'Shanter's 6,350-yard, par 35-36—71 Dales Cours and showed 206 strokes for 54 holes.
